Enable Built-in Administrator Account

First you will need to open a command prompt in administrator mode by right-clicking and choosing “Run as administrator”

Now type the following command:

net user administrator /active:yes

You should see a message that the command completed successfully. Log out and you should now see Administrator as a login choice.

(This has been tested on Windows 7 but it should work for Vista as well